Perennial Flowers

Perennial flowers offer a wide selection of size, color, and blooming seasons for your flower gardens. Many of the first flowers of the season are perennials - aubretia, basket-of-gold, creeping phlox. Perennials also give us the last colors of autumn - toad lillies, asters, and chrysanthemums. Perennials will bloom and grow for many years, Bi-ennials bloom and die after their second year, and annuals bloom in their first year, dying with the first frosts. In addition to the many available perennials, we have included a few biennials in our list.
