Planting Instructions:

1. Dig a hole twice as large as the pot. Mix one-third Gardener's Gold Rose Planting Mix with two-thirds soil from the hole. Add 1/4 cup Dr. Earth Starter Fertilizer into the soil mixture.
2. Cut the sides of the pot in four places before setting the pot in the hole.
3. Set the pot in the hole at the proper depth. The bud union should be at ground level, or slightly below ground level.
4. Remove the sides of the pot. If the soil is loose in the pot be careful not to remove the plant or break the soil away from its roots.
5. You do not have to remove the bottom of the pot; just be sure to remove the sides.
6. Fill the hole with the soil, fertilizer and mulch mixture. Water the plant thoroughly. Make as much mud around the plant as possible, you cannot water your new plant too much.
7. Make a large basin around each plant; large enough to hold at least one gallon of water.
8. If planting roses early in the spring, before the danger of frost is past, mound 2" to 6" of soil over the canes after planting and watering. Leave this mound until the buds form, then remove the extra soil.
9. Mix 2 ounces of J&L Root Starter in one gallon of water. Pour a half gallon of the Root Starter Mixture around each rose bush at planting time. Repeat this liquid fertilizer every two weeks for two months.
10. Keep the plants moist, but don't keep them too wet, all summer.
11. Prune and deadhead roses as needed during the summer to keep them blooming their best.
12. Pick up a Free J&L Rose Care and Pruning Guide.
